Philosophy of From Pages to Pedagogy, LLC

The Crosscutting Concepts of Comprehension, Content, & Cognition

Reading lives in all content areas. It is an essential element in our ecological learning system. Learning to read complex text involves an interdependent system that relies on the natural relationships among and between all content areas. Reading is the constant pattern in pedagogy across all subjects and the cause that yields a positive effect when mastered. When we fail to address the essential elements of reading in every content area, the learning system fails and children don't succeed. An under-educated child is a crack in the foundation of our society.
